In re: United States of America v. Otto Jackson,
No. 11,280-Criminal in the United States
District Court for the Northern District of Oklahoma.

Dear Sirs:

The defendant was tried and convicted on February 24, 1947, on three counts of possessing an illegal still and illegally carrying on the business of a distillery. He was sentenced to two years imprisonment and to pay a fine of $100.00 on Count One, and was placed on probation for a period of five years to begin at the expiration of the sentence on the remaining counts. On September 8, 1948, the defendant filed his motion and petition to vacate the judgment and sentence on the ground that certain evidence introduced at the trial was obtained as an incident of an illegal search and seizure, in violation of the IV Amendment to the United States Constitution.

Objection to the introduction of evidence illegally obtained must be made by timely motion to suppress the evidence. Unless failure to object is excused, motion to suppress the evidence and objection to its introduction at the time of the trial, when the facts of the alleged illegal search and the evidence thereby have been known to the defendant, comes too late. Seguro v. United States, 275 U. S. 106; Leon Garhart v. United States, 10 Cir., 157 F. 2d 777; Butler v. United States, 10 Cir., 153 F. 2d 993; Taylor v. Hudspeth, 113 F. 2d 825; Moore v. Aderhold, 10 Cir., 108 F. 2d 729; Dunn v. United States, 10 Cir., 98 F. 2d 119; United States v. Halli, 2 Cir., 115 F. 2d 292.

Immediately prior to the trial of the case, defendant objected to the introduction of the evidence in question, and upon proper hearing, it was determined that the evidence was obtained legally, and not as a result of an illegal search or seizure in violation of the IV Amendment. It follows that the motion to vacate will be overruled.

Respectfully yours,

/s/ Bower Broadhus
